

| Grade                           | Book Title                                 | Cover Image   | Author                       | Description   | Published |
|---------------------------------|--|---|------------------------------|---|-----------|
| Education &amp; Training |  |   |                              |   |           |
| K-2                             | Lilly's Purple Plastic Purse |    | Kevin Henkes          | Lilly the mouse idolizes her teacher Mr. Slinger, but when she comes to school flaunting three jingly quarters, movie-star glasses and a purple plastic purse "that played a jaunty tune when it was opened," she interrupts Mr. Slinger's lessons on "Types of Cheese" and words that rhyme with "mice." After one too many disruptions, he confiscates the purse until the day's end. | 1996      |
| K-3                             | Thank You, Mr. Falker        |    | Patricia Polacco      | Trisha loves school until her inability to read makes her feel dumb. Luckily, in the fifth grade, her teacher, Mr. Falker, and another specialized teacher have the skills to help her learn to read.   | 1998      |
| K-3                             | Willow                       |    | Denise Brennan-Nelson | All of the students in Miss Hawthorn's art class draw trees that are alike, except for Willow, a little girl who paints what she sees when she closes her eyes. When the teacher tells her that blue apples do not exist, Willow brings her one the next day. "Horrid little girl," Miss Hawthorn says. Yet at Christmas the only gift Miss Hawthorn receives is from Willow.           | 2011      |
| K-3                             | I Want to Be a Teacher       |    | Dan Liebman           | Young readers learn to respect the importance of doing a job well and appreciate the contributions these workers make to our life and the world around us.  | 2001      |
| K-3                             | I Want to Be a Librarian     |  | Dan Liebman           | The I Want to Be... series gives young children a realistic insight into the working day of adults. Easy-to-read captions and color photographs of women and men from different cultures help children understand what's involved in each occupation.   | 2003      |
| 1-3                             | My Great Aunt, Arizona       |  | Gloria Houston        | This book explores the life of a North Carolina girl who educated herself and spent many years as a teacher.  | 1997      |
| 1-4                             | Mr. Lincoln's Way            |  | Patricia Polacco      | Polacco's warm words and illustrations depict the powerful story of a boy who needs a way out of trouble and the principal who guides him.  | 2001      |

|             |   |   |                        |  |      |
|-------------|---|---|------------------------|--|------|
| 3-5 | The Fabled Fifth Graders or Aesop Elementary School |   | Candace Fleming | Here's a chapter book with all the kid appeal and absurd mayhem of Louis Sachar's classic Sideways Stories from Wayside School! These hilarious fables, complete with morals, will make you wish you went to Aesop Elementary.   | 2010 |
| 4-5 | A Week in the Woods                                 |  | Andrew Clements | Mark is upset about having to attend Hardy Elementary to finish out his fifth grade year. Though Mark is fortunate to have one of the most interesting fifth grade teachers, he refuses to pay attention in class or do any homework. Clements does a great job of expressing how a new kid might feel when trying to fit into a new school. | 2004 |
| 5           | Sideways Stories from Wayside School                |  | Louis Sachar    | There was a terrible mistake-Wayside School was built with one classroom on top of another, thirty stories high!   | 2004 |